Jennifer:

Hello everyone and welcome to MasterWorks Healing Membership Site Presents Predictions Week. We have Tori Hartman here with us today. Tori is such a powerhouse. She is a world-renowned psychic author, oracle reader, and spiritual teacher. She's actually the only psychic ever interviewed by the New York Times and the LA Business Journal for her work in business and conscious expansion through oracle cards. Cool. She is the very well known author of the Chakra Wisdom Oracle Deck. She has some other decks as well that she has published since, but that's a very popular one. And she has really deep, profound gifts as an intuitive that makes her tarot work just profound. She also has a deep understanding of many esoteric disciplines that she brings to her readings with the Chakra Wisdom Oracle Deck. As you could tell, she deals with chakras too. She's an expert in so many fields of the esoteric and metaphysical, and we are incredibly blessed to call Tori Hartman one of our MasterWorks Healing contributors for many years. Welcome Tori Hartman to Predictions Week 2022. It's awesome having you here.

Tori Hartman:

Hi Jenn. Welcome everyone, and I love doing this every year. I have to tell you I looked back and I thought, "Oh my gosh, I've done this for that many years. I want to let you know that I always feel inspired when I get to speak to your community Jenn. And it has a lot to do with the fact that everyone who's here wants to learn and wants to be part of something bigger than themselves, and that's going to take me in to what I'm going to do tonight with everybody.

Tori Hartman:

I always like to do a little bit of a chit chat, kind of give you an exercise to do so. Grab your pen and grab a piece of paper or your journal. And we're going to do a meditation in a few minutes. But part of that is that, when we do that meditation and I do readings for people, you are going to get a reading based on what you picked. It's very interesting stuff, and you will start to understand it as you go. What I'd like everybody to do is just breathe and drop your shoulders. It has been a very odd week, and I want you all just to think back, and I'm going to throw you back in time here to 1939, New Year's Eve, 1939.

Tori Hartman:

And that evening, no one had a clue what was on the world stage coming to them. And just a few months earlier, they had heard that this man named Hitler and his Third Reich went into Poland and Poland fell in three weeks, in September 1939, but it didn't affect America. It didn't really affect anybody who wasn't in that part of the world. So we weren't really paying attention to it. We celebrated 1939 and as everything does 80-year cycles, I want you all to breathe. And I want you to imagine that you're standing on history at 1940, and now you can see what happened in those years; that Pearl Harbor was going to happen in 1941, and it would take our troops three years. Don't you really think about this? While people enlisted, we were not trained.

Tori Hartman:

We were not trained for war. We didn't want to go, but it took three years to get everybody mobilized and trained. Now, in order to understand that it goes in 80-year cycles, 1939 brings up the idea of the, I want to say that we had the stock market crash in 2008, so 80 years. Now you know what's coming. In 1939, you were about to go into a world war. And I want you to imagine as you drop your shoulders and breathe, that your relatives are in that spot. The people that sacrificed so you could be here. Love them, hate them, whatever, they were there, and they carried that in their DNA. And I want you to come forward to 2019, where we all were standing there. We're like, "This is a new decade." I wish I could ask you all, out loud and go, how many of you really remember two years ago? It's gone.

Tori Hartman:

And this is the blight that happens during a war. Now, why am I saying war? Because this what we're in right now. And even the dialogue we use about COVID, and I'm talking about COVID now, I want you to just drop your shoulders and get that I'm going to stay away from the politics. I want you to keep your focus. In other words, your eye on the ball, right? Because the thing is, has anybody escaped COVID? Think about it. Has anybody escaped it? Don't you know one relative, friend, family member, yourself who was affected? I want you to think of the people we lost in the last 24 months. It's impossible not to think of that. Now, I want you to look back and say, "Wow, our relatives lost people too." And we lost relatives, but we didn't know those people, they weren't a part of our circle every day.

Tori Hartman:

While we're not the only ones in the world that took this on, we certainly are the torch bearers. What do I mean by that? Well, think of the Olympics, right? Life kind of dictates that we each carry a torch only a certain distance before we hand it off. And just like those Olympic torch bears, they run a short distance before they hand it off to the next person. It goes on until the final person obviously reaches the destination to start the game. Yet, somewhere in all this, I want you to really sink into this, just breathe and just sink into that. Just imagine, this is the spot from where your grandfather ran and passed the torch to your father. And then he runs a certain amount, but you see there is no completion, there are milestones. And the truth is we have become, as a society, as a world, disconnected. And in the disconnect, we lose our humanity because somewhere along the line, we forgot to let the next person take the torch. That's part of what we are doing in this community.

Tori Hartman:

Think about it, right Jenn. I mean, we're constantly passing on the torch and if you don't have kids, that's what you're doing here too. The important thing in tonight's conversation, and I'm going to bring up three very vital things that you need to know in order to really create in this new year. People say, "Oh, what are you setting for the new year?" I said, "I'm so exhausted, I can't." And here's the thing I want to remind everybody of: We're all exhausted. We are all at some level. Do you know that 39% of America, and I can only speak about American statistics, are deeply depressed in the past two years? That's the diagnosis, okay. But I want you to understand it is coming from our cellular memory because no one knew in the 1940s how to behave during a war, they were just in emergency mode, everything was 'survive.' The difference is they had to band together to survive.

Tori Hartman:

Carry that torch. And I want to remind you of something else. Do you know that it in, I think it was 1941, Roosevelt signed the orders to pass all of our Japanese-Americans to be put in internment camps. I'm not blaming Roosevelt by the way, I think he's a great President. The point I'm making is that fear has been the underlying ingredient. Jenn knows this and some of you know that it's very difficult when you are in fear, to lift your head up. It's very difficult to create a future when you can't move to the next step. I can't tell you how many people have said to me in the past weeks, especially young people, "Boy, I just want to get back to the way it was." And it's really hard for me to say to them, it will never get back to the way it was.

Tori Hartman:

We have to move forward into a new understanding of where we've come from, but we can't create that from the anger and the rage and blaming someone or everyone. And the truth is that they were just as scared in the 1940s. They were terrified. There are posters saying things like, "Don't say anything to a Japanese person", or "Don't look at a German". This was the fear that was overwhelming and it was not just in America. This was worldwide. And it really didn't hit us until after Pearl Harbor. But think about this and then I'm going to go into the part I really want to give you tonight and work with you on. I want you to look at the idea that COVID attacked every country in the world. Think about this. No one is exempt from this war and think of our leaders. It's a war.

Tori Hartman:

You have to wear a mask. You shouldn't wear a mask. You could wear a mask. We've had all this stuff and I don't want to go into all of that because here's the thing; I want you to think about this, we all have been in this war to an invisible enemy. And what happens when we have an invisible enemy, we get scared and we lose our humanity. We panic and we attack anything and anybody that we think would attack our very survival. And I really want you to get that, when you are hounded daily, daily, daily, every day, that you are in survival mode, what happens is, it's just a way of life. You don't realize that you're scared all the time. A friend of mine asked me the other day about my New Year's blah, blah, blah resolutions," I said, "Girl, honestly, I can't even, I don't have any inspiration in me." And she went, "Oh my God, that's how I feel."

Tori Hartman:

And we were talking about it and it's easy. I mean, Jenn, we can get pepped up and we can be happy for other people, but the truth is, there is an undercurrent of fear because we don't know what this is going to become. That said, you do know all the tools are inside of you. This is your Dorothy moment everybody, this is "click your red shoes", right? Click your shoes because I want you to know that everything you need to survive and actually thrive is already hidden in your family agreements and in your chakras. And what we're going to do tonight, which is my fun part, is we're going to kind of start part one. This is kind of like an opening to this, which is, the first thing we are going to go through is I'm going to just give you seven people. There are seven people, think about the shock of seven people. There are seven people in your world that each have an internal memory or answer.

Tori Hartman:

Now, some of us are old enough to remember our father. My dad was in World War II. He jumped on D-Day, but we can look to other people too. We don't just have to have our immediate family, but we're going to work with our family tonight. We're going to work with that. And by the way, I want to share one quick story, Jenn, and then I want to just get into this. I was teaching multi-generational healing, which is what this is. This really calls for it because we are in war time. Remember I told you three secrets, number one, if you are in war time, the sooner you accept that this is a war mentality, the better. War energy, we are trying to cope with this without having the tools, because be peaceful, be loving, be that, but we're not behaving that way. I mean, honestly, hold your hand up. I know I'm holding mine. Who has fought with somebody because they disagree?

Tori Hartman:

The point is, it's just the war mentality. Now that's number one. The thing I want to tell you is I was teaching multi-generational healing, and I know I've told this story before, but it's a great story, so I will tell again. When I came into the class and she said, "Listen, I'm not going to forget my parents." I said, "That's fine, you don't have to, just take a seat." She brought it up again, and I said, "listen, that class forgiving the parents is down the hall." I said, "we're just going to work with multi-generational healing." She was going, "all right." Well, it turned out, and by the way you could do this if you're adopted, it doesn't matter because adoption also is in your DNA. It's there. It's a whole other story. But anyway, she says, "Well, I hated my parents. They abandoned, they got us into a cult." She and her brother.

Tori Hartman:

"And I never knew my grandparents." And she said, "I didn't know them. Why should I even want to bother? They left us to die in that cult. They didn't care." And I said, okay, "Well, find out about them anyway," because that was the exercise right, which we're going to work. And she said, "Okay." So she goes off and she's resistant and she misses the second week, which I always notice - people aren't there because energetically, when you're doing this type of work, you want to see where people's chakra fall out, right? And that was second chakra, or emotion. So she comes back in the third week, fight or flight, third chakra.

Tori Hartman:

And she says, "I need to share." I said, "Okay, you can share." So she shared, "I have to say, I thought this was kind of, you know, a little B.S., But I found out that my grandfather, my mother's father, who I never met, had spent his entire fortune trying to get me and my brother out of the cult, and I never met him. And he tried to help us, but he kept losing in the court and he lost everything." And she said, "He died right around the time," like I think it was two weeks or three weeks before she signed up for this course. And she said, "I can't believe this." And there was just this moment when we all got that it was this profound feeling of love for someone you have never met, who loved you so much that they sacrificed for you to be here. And I want you all to get that. We are here because someone before us sacrificed for us.

Tori Hartman:

And we should really step back and say, "Gosh, we've all lost our humanity." I'm not saying this is not just one person by the way, this is worldwide. What I'm going to invite you to do tonight, and I'm going to ask you to go ahead on a piece of paper and write down the numbers 1 through 7. And as you have those numbers, I want you to just imagine white light from the heavens coming down. And I want you to really get that you're connected. There's this connection as you look back. You can energetically look back almost over the last 80 years. And I want you to look back and I want you to sit where you are. And as you have those numbers, I'm going to give you an exercise.

Tori Hartman:

For each number, I'm going to say who that number represents. And then I want you to just write one word. One word, not two, not seven, not, "Oh, I came up with two." One word. And by the way, if you write self-esteem the hyphenated or self-worth, "self" is the word. I'm just telling you this because if nothing comes forward, just go blank or nothing. Because the important thing is we're going to move quickly because intuition moves faster than your brain. And we are going to move very quick, breathe and join us by the campfire. And now I'm going to ask you to put down next to that number one, what is the one word that comes forward to you about how you have coped with COVID? Just go ahead and write whatever that is. Any word you want. Okay. It's fast paced.

Tori Hartman:

Number two, write down next to that one word you can think of for your mom's coping with COVID? What is her reaction or emotion? And by the way, even if she's passed, you can still do it. Number three, your dad, how would your dad respond to COVID? Number four, your mother's mother. How would your grandmother on your mom's side react? Picture her. Write down one word, drop your shoulders. You've got this. Even if your brain is saying, "Oh, what?" It's okay brain. And number five, your mom's father, your grandfather, what would his emotional or state be about COVID? What would that one word be energetically that you're getting from him? Excellent.

Tori Hartman:

And now we're going to move on to your dad's side. Your dad's mom, your grandmother, even if you didn't know her, just imagine one word, breathe, drop your shoulders. And now we're going to look at your dad's dad. Imagine him. Okay. Write down the one word. Excellent. And now I'm going to take all that white light and I'm going to just spread it out to everyone. I'm going to remind you we're this community together and we are going to do readings. This works very quickly and I want you to listen closely. When I pull cards, I'm going to ask someone the number. You're going to begin to understand how this translates. Jenn. I am turning it back to you for this moment.

Jennifer:

Okay.

Jennifer:

That was fascinating. The connection to ancestral is so important and we sometimes forget where some of our reactions come from.

Tori Hartman:

Our disconnect. See, we're so disconnected because we're scared, we're in fear. I want to validate that. I'm glad that you're saying that because we are completely in fear. People don't recognize it because we've been operating in it. But you know, think about our ancestors who operated in depression and fear their whole lives.

Jennifer:

Yes, exactly. It's been around us. We're diving into session work now. Tori, would you pick a number from one to 177?

Tori Hartman:

No, I can't go that far. Okay, I'm going to go to 119.

Jennifer:

One, one, nine. We're going to 119 and it looks like it's Minnesota.

Julie:

It is Minnesota!

Jennifer:

Is that Julie?

Julie:

It is. Hi. How are you?

Jennifer:

Good, thank you.

Julie:

Good.

Jennifer:

I'll pass you over to Tori, go ahead Tori.

Tori Hartman:

Hey Julie.

Julie:

Hi.

Tori Hartman:

How are you? And those words that you wrote down, is there one that's coming forward to you? And give me a little bit, and then I'll pull a card for you if you want.

Julie:

I'd love a card pull. It was interesting because most of these people are deceased. My grandfathers both were apathy and my dad's dad just shrugged his shoulders. I don't know if it was a "who cares?" Or "this is the way it is" ,or what?

Tori Hartman:

That was your dad's dad?

Julie:

That was my dad's dad. And then my mom's dad just was more apathetic or nonchalant. It was kind of like "who cares?" Both of them were like, "who cares?" And I thought that was real interesting.

Tori Hartman:

It's interesting that you're saying that because, I hear what you're saying, and by the way everybody, this is really great, and Julie, that is exactly how that generation behaved. Right? Think about it. What were they going to do? Shrug your shoulders. You have to barrel through or march through. I forget what they called it, but I am going to tell you what card I pulled for you, and it's very interesting that those two came up for you because I pulled The Tower and The Tower reversed is a very powerful card. For a couple of reasons, when I teach it, I don't always teach people to read reversals right away, because I think they're tough because it makes you think differently about the card.

Tori Hartman:

But let's talk about you. Julie, you just light a match and let it blow up and then you kind of go, "Okay, now we'll fix it." You're not somebody who comes in and says, "Okay, let's see how to put this back together." Really what it comes down to is, and I'm going to say something that's maybe rather interesting about you, when I look at The Tower, that's a third chakra, so that's fight or flight. And it really is that you are just in there and I'm going to tell you something; their apathetic stance is actually a power source for you, believe it or not. Because as you interpret it as "Yeah, who cares," it's kind of like, "Are you sure that's what they're saying?" As the adult, we can look at it and go, "Well, that's what it seemed like."

Tori Hartman:

But maybe that was the way they coped - to let it roll off. You can't take it in. What you don't take in, you don't have to work out. And I think that is a very strong, good quality you've been given. So let's talk about how our ancestors give us, I think it's challenges, cause we're here to heal the wounds of our grandparents actually, but the truth is they also give us gifts. And it's funny because they both did that. When I look at that, that's a strong gift in you. Things roll off your back if they're in your way, let me put it that way. And this has been your whole life, by the way. You are not afraid of things destroying.

Tori Hartman:

In fact, what's more frustrating to you is when people sit there and worry about them being destroyed. Here's where I'm going to tell you. This is a time for you to really recognize that yes, your dreams have changed. The title of this talk is Re-dreaming Your Future. Where you were two years ago is really not who you are now. And what I want to tell you is that there is a certain amount of fight getting in there and really saying, "This is what I want to do." I'm going to say this because I think everybody will get this. When we look at this idea of what you're picking up from those ancestors, it's also a time for you to really say, "What is it you really want?" Does that make sense to you? What do you really want?

Tori Hartman:

It really comes down to it. I know this has been a universal thing. People are going, "What do I want?" The first thing is to recognize apathy. I'm not going to be connecting to it. That's something that has saved you. That's been a quality in you that has been very good because it has allowed you to be fluid, because I want to say also that what you wanted is not really what you wanted. There is a deeper place of quiet inside that you are looking for. I feel like there is a creative thing. Do you know what I mean? There is writing or there is something around you that I feel like you're getting closer to the heart of what you really want to say. And it's been very hard for you to verbalize it.

Julie:

Right.

Tori Hartman:

And believe it or not, I feel like it's related to your grandmother. I think it's your mom's mom. And it's more about not really being free to say what you really want to say. And that is where the apathetic side is going to support you because you really are not going to care anymore about what people say. My dad, he said, "Oh gosh, don't tell anybody that story." And I said, "I won't tell anybody about it until you're dead. Don't worry." And he said, "That's not good." The point is, you're in a very good place, but I really want you to get that, what seems good may not be, but what seems not good may be good. In other words, that apathy is actually a strength and something I'm going to say to you, it's very interesting that you have a reverse card here and I want everyone to get this: what opposes exposes. The apathy is going to expose what you do care about. And I would encourage you to write down some things, take the word 'apathy', go into the dictionary, go into the synonyms and start looking at the words and you're going to get an even deeper meaning. Does that help you?

Julie:

Yes, it does. I missed when you said what it opposes exposes, and then you said something else. And I kind of missed that.

Tori Hartman:

Here's the important part: this is going to have a replay.

Julie:

Right. I can listen to it then.

Tori Hartman:

By the way, everybody, this is really, really key, when you, for a moment almost glitch out, when your internet in your brain goes out, it has a lot to do with the fact that it's a direct hit.

Julie:

Okay.

Tori Hartman:

The truth is that what you really care about is coming out through the, if you will forgive me putting it this way, but saying they're apathetic, the truth is you're on the other side of deep caring. And the question that I would say is, "Have I cared too much? Am I too much?" And so the thing is like, "have I said stuff to people that have been unbelievably outrageous?"

Julie:

I know I have.

Tori Hartman:

"Who am I?" I think looking at the apathetic side is like finding that, for you, that place of "maybe I don't need to care so much about certain things, but I do need to care about my legacy." And we're going to talk a little bit more about legacy later on, but does that help at all? Does that make sense to you?

Julie:

That's wonderful. Thank you very much. That really does help.

Jennifer:

That is a fascinating process. Eventually, it does help.

Julie:

Well, I wouldn't have gone there at all, so this is wonderful.

Jennifer:

We got there in such a crazy way, but so unique and amazing.

Julie:

Can I tell really quick? The last session we had with the last caller - they said that there was a woman that was to come through. My mom actually came through and told me that she was sorry, it just hit me really; it was just absolutely wonderful. And again, my number wasn't picked or anything, and I didn't even ask for that. I've been asking for it, but all of a sudden it was there and it was like, "oh my gosh, this was so wonderful." So thank you for all of this. This is really wonderful.

Jennifer:

You're so welcome. That makes me so happy. It's almost like that makes the whole week worth it.

Tori Hartman:

It does, actually.

Julie:

It did, for me, that was just such a blessing to have her come and say that she was sorry, it was just, I'm still kind of digesting all that and this is wonderful, too. Thank you. The apathy, I can absolutely see.

Tori Hartman:

Beautiful.

Julie:

I will be working with that. Thank you.

Jennifer:

Thank you. Thank you. Would you pick our next person from one to 179?

Julie:

125.

Jennifer:

125. Perfect. Thank you, love.

Julie:

Thank you.

Tori Hartman:

Thank you.

Jennifer:

We're going to go to 125 soon. I want to talk a little bit about Tori's offer. It's an unusual offer, but really fricking cool.

Tori Hartman:

It's only for your people.

Jennifer:

It's only for our people. It's for everyone in Predictions Week, which is what MasterWorks Healing is.

Tori Hartman:

Yes. I agree. Everybody is.

Jennifer:

Not just for members then. Thank you for putting this together. This is super cool. First of all, you're going to get a 70-minute reading/private session with Tori. And you're going to get to prepare for it. You're going to get a mini fun book. You're going to learn about your legacy, the legacy you've had and what you're creating. It really is about moving from exhaustion of the last two years to enthusiasm for what's next. Finding your North Star through chakra wisdom. It's Re-dreaming Your Future and finding you anew, finding you again, but in this whole new light, it's such a really unique offer. You're going to get a full package at a crazy discounted price because she loves MasterWorks Healing. Thank you Tori, so much. You're going to be part of her inner circle. You save $200 when you sign up for one of the 12 sessions. There are only 12. Is that right?

Tori Hartman:

Yes, it is very limited because it's very intensive. The actual fun book, what we did just now, that's going to be done personally and deeper, because you're going to go even deeper into the gifts you have.

Jennifer:

Okay.

Tori Hartman:

The fun book is very deep about a lot of this information and hot off the press.

Jennifer:

And you're also going to get a Chakra Wisdom Card Map to personalize for the next 12 months ahead. And then you're going to get a month-by-month card spread. Really cool. That is so awesome. If you want to be one of the 12, it's first come, first serve, so it's not going to be for everyone. This is regular, about 500 bucks, and she's giving it a huge discount. This is a personal, private reading, and a very detailed reading too. Not only do you get just a reading, but you get extra attention, if you will. That's a 75-minute private reading. Tell me, is there anything else that I'm missing about this? It's really, really cool.

Tori Hartman:

The important thing is that this is really part of my multi-generational healing work and coming back to that story, this girl says all that and her grandfather had died. What she got out of that when we talk about that story in the course, is that she'd been loved. And if you think about the movie Back to the Future, Marty didn't just come back. When he went back in time, he actually changed his destiny, but also Stanley's destiny, because when he comes back, remember his father's now a famous author. But the point I'm making is that's what this work does, because I bypass your brain. That's why no one can figure out what I'm doing, because I teach. "Oh, let me figure this out." So your brain is going "Whizzzz"...

Jennifer:

That's exactly what our brains are doing.

Tori Hartman:

That is what I teach overall. And I like it when you are more empowered, so the biggest thing about this is that you are going to come in with having this information. You're going to have done a lot of this in the fun book. And then I'm going to just pinpoint some exact things for you and you're going to go, "Oh my gosh." And then we're going to have a whole new platform for you. It's almost like you're going to be McFly coming back.

Jennifer:

You'll be a whole new person. I really get this. This is really powerful. If this is calling to you, you might be one of the 12. So go check it out at www.Torioffer.com. Go check that out if you want to be one of those 12. It's a really unique opportunity. She's never done this before. She probably won't again. If you really want to play and understand your legacy and understand how to create your legacy for what's next for you, this is the gal to do it with. Really unique approach. Thank you, Tori.

Tori Hartman:

Thank you.

Jennifer:

We're going to call in number 125. We're going to Kathleen in Colorado. You're on the air.

Kathleen:

Oh my God. Really?

Jennifer:

Unless you don't want to!

Kathleen:

Well, no, I do!

Jennifer:

Okay, well it's you, baby, I'm going to go ahead and pass you over to Tori.

Tori Hartman:

Hi. Did any of those brief relative words come forward to you? Is there anyone that really stood out?

Kathleen:

Yes, it was my father and it was anger.

Tori Hartman:

It's very interesting because the card I pulled for you, it's the first chakra. First chakra, by the way, in the work that I do, is a whole thing about Western versus Eastern chakra, but the Western chakra is very different. What came forward is the Ace of Cups. Now in the chakra with the tarot deck, the Ace of Cups is red, since it's that first chakra, but it's also in this sense, the beliefs around love. What's interesting about your father with the anger is that we know that anger is grief and loss and fear, that's really that kind of coverup. Most of the time when we're really enraged about something, it has something to do with threatening our own safety. Does that make sense?

Kathleen:

Yes. Yes, it does.

Tori Hartman:

And I want to say something, this is interesting to me because when I look at this card, I keep feeling like, this is going to sound odd, it's a gift of some kind. So can you tell me - with your dad's dad, what was that word?

Kathleen:

Avoidance.

Tori Hartman:

Let's tell that story. Your dad, angry, that his father avoided everything. Avoided it. "No, I don't want to know." So can you imagine trying to have a conversation with somebody who's avoiding everything?

Kathleen:

Yes.

Tori Hartman:

And now let's look at this. Now, we look at the fact that this has skipped a generation and we're in that particular line right now. And we look at the Ace of Cups. You are being offered a gift of love. When you take the word 'anger', and I'm sure everybody said, "Oh, how's she going to pull this rabbit out?" Because we take a word like 'anger' and we think 'anger', but then we say, "How can your gift be love?"

Tori Hartman:

Well, because avoidance, if someone is ignoring, I want you to really get that for that man, he had to have been avoiding, he was ignoring his son. And when we think about the why of it, and I don't want get too much into the why, but here I'm going to say he was, the grandfather, probably was a drinker or had his own stuff. One of the things that happens in this particular situation is that grandfather knew that he would harm his son, and so he just avoided and ignored him. And he was trying to save him by ignoring him. And the reality is that the son doesn't see that, he just sees somebody ignoring him and he is angry about it. And I want to tell you that I'm going to guess here that you are probably, with most people, very good at walking them through their anger and helping them be present and being present for other people.

Tori Hartman:

I'm going to guess that's one of your gifts - that you can really be super present. People just feel heard when you're in the room. Would that be accurate about you?

Kathleen:

Yes, it would be.

Tori Hartman:

That's exactly how we just did it. We just found one of your gifts. We know that you being present, being in the room, being there for somebody else, and we look at this Ace of Cups and we can see the first chakra, girl, that's your new foundation because there's a whole thing I do with finding your purpose. Really, when we look at this, it's about the first chakra, it is about a new foundation and how deep will your roots grow. And you have that chance right now to take all of that, that masculine energy, which by the way, was just hurt. If you look at this, just wounded, unable to communicate, unable to connect, ignoring each other, avoiding a problem.

Tori Hartman:

When you've learned in your life, and stop me if I'm wrong, that this is what's coming forward based on this, you've really learned to say, "Hey, there is something going on here and we have got to fix it." Probably some people go, "Don't get so angry." Because you probably come out and go, "This is how it has to be," And you're like, "I'm not angry." Meanwhile, you're like, "Ah." But that's just because that's how you learned that way of coping. And sometimes you get angry at someone when they're not taking care of themselves. You see some people like, "You know you need to take better care." You're like, "Hey, what are you doing?" You call them out on it. Does that make sense?

Kathleen:

Yes, it does.

Tori Hartman:

And what we're talking about is, that is actually a gift of yours. And this is the thing, when I look at that Ace of Cups, it is like when your internal cup of love and understanding is overflowing, you will be able to give that to others. And believe it or not, I just want everybody on the call, drop your shoulders. Breathe, drop your shoulders and just become present in this moment. I want you to really get that what just happened was we recognized those interpretations of those people are very real. And not only are they correct, they are the way you perceive them, and therefore, you created your reality based on those observations. Does that make sense to you?

Kathleen:

Yes.

Tori Hartman:

Now the next question becomes, "What's my next step and what would I do knowing that these people are this way? How can I take that and use that? Because sometimes you need that anger to get things moving. You need that same energy. How do I use that avoidance to say, "I'm never going to give up on myself or anyone else again, I'm going to be present"? And that's what this is about for you. It's about being present no matter what. And your gift is no matter what, I'm going to show up. Does that make sense?

Kathleen:

Yes. Yes, it does.

Tori Hartman:

I can just hear you going, "Why does that make sense?"

Jennifer:

Yeah. Why does that really...?

Kathleen:

Wow, okay. You're blowing my mind Tori.

Tori Hartman:

By the way, for everybody, what's the next step with that? Well, as we put those modalities together and we look at each set ... your mom with her mom, and your dad with his mom, all four sets, you start to look at that and you go, "Wait a minute." These are some interpretations I made. And that one is a strength. Why was I looking at it as a weakness? Because you see, we look at it through a child's eyes and the way we are treated. We forget that it's not just them, there's a connection. And by the way, now that you have this lineage that's connected back, and that grandfather with avoidance, the question I would bring up is, was he avoiding his feelings or was he avoiding hurting people with his feelings? And there are other things we would go deeper in, but obviously for this nature of this.

Tori Hartman:

But when I say other things, I don't want to leave everybody hanging. The way to take this next step is to really look around, when we look at those two people and you bringing them up, their feelings can be transformed for you and future generations and everyone you meet. Because you can communicate in a different way and you can bring forward your gifts in a way that is going to get those gifts across. And you're not going to be blocked by that thing of people thinking, "Is she angry at me?" Or frightened. Listen, you're a force to be reckoned with, I can tell by this card. But anyway, I hope that helped. I hope that made sense.

Kathleen:

It did. It really did. Yeah. I'm kind of a 'take it as it is'-person.

Jennifer:

Isn't that weird how that all made sense?

Kathleen:

Oh my God, you're just a genius Tori.

Jennifer:

I know it. That was so cool. Well thank you Kathleen.

Kathleen:

Oh, and Jennifer, I want to thank you. I also joined MasterWorks Healing.

Jennifer:

Wow, Kathleen.

Tori Hartman:

You're welcome. You're part of a very special community. And I want to say that because obviously Jenn, it's hard when you're tooting your own horn and all that stuff, but I want to say, everything she's told you isn't a lie. And I don't know how you do it Jenn, but she deeply cares for every person. And I love being a part of the contribution to her community and this community because I feel a part of it. And I love that. It's just an amazing experience. So welcome, I'm glad you joined.

Jennifer:

Yay, Kathleen. Thank you so much for sharing that with me. So delighted you're here. You'll join us on a regular call on Monday.

Kathleen:

Oh, definitely. Looking forward to it.

Jennifer:

Excellent. Kathleen my love, would you pick our next person from one to 180.

Kathleen:

157.

Jennifer:

All right, we're going to call number 157, and this is amazing Tori, really.

Tori Hartman:

Thank you. I'm hoping that person did the numbers, but that's okay if they didn't.

Jennifer:

Let's check in with Donna and see. Donna, did you do the process?

Donna:

Yes, that is Donna. I came in halfway through, she was just reading the numbers with who it related to. So I can't say that I completely did correctly.

Tori Hartman:

Donna, did you write down any of that?

Donna:

I did.

Tori Hartman:

Okay, great. Then we'll rock and roll. We're good, Donna. What we're going to do, is you're going to tell me of those seven, who comes forward to you? Who are you going, "Well, that's interesting," or, "That one bothers me," or whatever. Tell me the one that's pulling on you.

Donna:

Well, the one that came forward is a grandfather that I never met.

Tori Hartman:

Perfect. That's even better.

Donna:

He was very concerned about it. Yes, his thought was, this is serious. Take it seriously. This could be trouble.

Tori Hartman:

Oh, that's very interesting. And now, when you look at that grandfather, is it your father's father or your mother's father?

Donna:

My father's father.

Tori Hartman:

Okay. That's very interesting. And I want to say this because I'm glad, Donna, that you didn't meet him. For the sake of this work. Just because people can get that, you don't have to have met the person. Because what you've gotten is, you see, it skips the generation. So your ability to focus in and pay attention to things that make sense and matter to you has gotten even more heightened during COVID. And one of the things that happened in the last two years, is all of our, if you will, "spidey senses", particularly around war, responding to war. And this is stuff I get more into when we talk about the legacy. By the way, when I say that for you, I want to clarify that everyone kind of wants to leave something important behind, but there's really no way to leave a legacy unless we understand the legacy we've been left. Only by acknowledging that and putting the pieces together.

Tori Hartman:

It's like, you can't build a skyscraper unless you go down and put a foundation twice as deep. People want to come in and go, "Well, I don't talk to my mom, but I want to do this." And it's very difficult unless you have that entire package. When I say this to you, I picked and the card that came forward is the Death Card. And really what it's about, is it's complete renewal. Because one of the things that has been important for you is that it's not so much that this is important or it's serious, but you've had the ability to recognize quickly what is important and what is not. Priorities have shifted a great deal for you.

Tori Hartman:

And I say this because who you were two years ago is not who you were this New Year's eve. You had to shed everything that didn't work for you, and why? Because you have that gift, from that grandfather of, "Hey, this is serious. This is serious." And it's a wake-up call. Somebody dialed the red phone. Somebody said, "Hey, pay attention." Because one of the things I want to say to you and what I'm really picking up around you, is there was a lot of lingering dreams and ideas. And sometimes it's kind of like dust in your house, right? They're laying around and it's always the idea, "you're not going to do it. You're not going to do it, it's making me nervous." And yet, we don't think that way. What I want to say to you is that you are in the process of transcending into that new part of you.

Tori Hartman:

And by the way, that's why, up to this point, it's been very difficult to say ... because a lot of people say, "I want to move, but I don't know where I want to go." Or, "I want to do something, but I don't know what that looks like." And it's because, as Jenn just said, the fog of COVID. Well, it is the fog of COVID. It's the fog of war. We don't know what's coming, but one thing you know is that you are absolutely certain you cannot be the same person you were two years ago. And that has made it a little challenging. But the strength from that grandparent is, "I'm going to take things seriously, but you know what? I'm not going to take them so seriously that I'm focusing on things that don't matter." Does that make sense?

Donna:

It makes a lot of sense, yes. There have been a lot of changes the last couple of years.

Tori Hartman:

Yes, I'm getting a little lightheaded just thinking about the changes and in this particular thing. By the way, what Jenn was talking about with the fun book and stuff - I'm going to pull it out as I'm talking to you. I define each of the seven positions in a different way. Because there is a specific thing, specific message, from that seventh chakra. Here it is. The seventh chakra, which is this card, is about family invalidation. What do you know about the family where people need to get on the same page? And this is about like not everything is in an extreme, and that's why you had to move away from so many things because you just got very tired from extremes. And that caused the disorientation and the lack of motivation. Does this make sense to you?

Donna:

It does. Yes, I never looked at it that way, but yes.

Tori Hartman:

And what you're doing is when we look at that grandfather, it's like, boy, he was a strong guy, by the way.

Donna:

Yes.

Tori Hartman:

He knew what was important. He knew what to take seriously. He knew what he didn't, and he actually had a fairly successful life. Now, other people might not agree, but he did. Because he got things done and he helped a lot of people. In some ways he was a very brave person and I don't know what he did, but I know it's something that included bravery and honor. Does that make sense to you?

Donna:

It makes perfect sense, yes.

Tori Hartman:

And so I want to say to you right now to just go into yourself and anybody who had a grandparent like that, I want you to sink into this idea that that man that we are talking about right now, he saved a life. He is one of those people and you have that in your DNA. And that's why you cannot continue to silence your own voice. And that's why all of these people have, for lack of a better word with the death card, just died off. They've gone away and I'm not saying death in a mean way. I don't mean it like that, no. It sounds like that it's not. But all these people had to go so you could grow because he is giving you a message. "Take it seriously" means, take everything serious right now, do what you need to do. Because he couldn't be distracted. I had a reading with a woman and it was like, nobody liked that grandfather. She went on and I said, "Well, who was he?" She said, "Oh, he was a general." I was like, "A General?"

Tori Hartman:

"He was the first black Brigadier General." And there's a picture she showed all of us with her grandfather escorting the Queen in 1966. The queen of England. A black General in 1966, escorting the Queen. He's showing her the island. I mean, this is kind of like she said, "Yeah, nobody likes to..." And I go, "Do you realize your heritage? Do you realize that heritage? Do you realize that heritage?" And I want everybody to just breathe, drop your shoulders. You have a gold mine and it's right there in your DNA. And there are strings, right? They're just leading right into you. And when you tap it, boom, it's even more energy. It's like having all these people cheering for you. They want you to be here. They want you to succeed. He's giving you good advice, but he's also a strong man. So he knew what was important. And he's reminding you of that. Does that help?

Donna:

Yes, very much so. Yes, interesting because I don't know a whole lot about him, but to get some of that background, that's fabulous.

Tori Hartman:

And what's great is, when you start finding out about them, when you get the full story, you start to go, "Whoa, there's some more there." Right? Because we all have a skewed idea. We don't really know what happened until we find out what happened, and then your entire destiny changes. By the way, the minute she figured that out, everybody was going, "Are you kidding, do you know the gift you have?" This was a woman who was working as a receptionist, basically, forgive me, no offense to anybody. But she was a single mom. She could barely afford to keep her and her son fed. And she had an Engineering degree. And once she did this process, her big dream was to get a home for her and her son. She wanted a real home. She wanted to own a home. So he could grow up in a home with her.

Tori Hartman:

And after she did that, this was about eight weeks later, she mentioned to somebody in the company her skillset. She got a job. This was an Engineering firm of course, right. So she got a job. She got promoted and she was almost instantly into the executive pool. She said her income was like four times what it was. And the point is she bought a house, and it happened so fast. Because you see, once we recognize our legacy, it is that fast. It is that powerful. And I have to tell you, when I recognized my legacy, it was like, boom, all of a sudden, first book, second book, boom. It opens the flood gates. And you have a very, very powerful one right there with that grandfather. And I can see like, if I'm looking energetically, I can see that grandfather's very lit up. And the other ones are kind of in the shadow right now. They're kind of stepping back. This one can come forward and give you this gift right now.

Donna:

All right. That's very cool.

Tori Hartman:

There you go. And when I talked about what we do in the fun book, we have this whole thing where you get to look at each of those grandparents and then, when you come in with your ideas, then we together discover other things that are in each of those lines between all four. So it's very interesting and it just makes fantastic changes. It's amazing.

Donna:

Thank you.

Jennifer:

Really cool. Thank you so much, Donna, for even more clarification of this. This is really awesome. Donna my love, would you pick our next member from one to 178.

Donna:

144.

Jennifer:

144. Okay, We're going Wisconsin.

Virginia:

Hello. This is Virginia.

Jennifer:

Hi Virginia.

Tori Hartman:

Hi.

Virginia:

This has been very interesting. I've gone through this whole inventory of all these people, some of whom I didn't know well or never met.

Tori Hartman:

Exactly.

Virginia:

It's interesting.

Tori Hartman:

Yes, it's really fascinating because I've seen people recognize things, Virginia, that they've never seen before. And what's great about that is... I always thought my parents had a rough time, but what I recognized when I did the work on myself (and, by the way, mine came out like very naturally, because as I learned to read the chakras wisdom oracle, and everybody who I was teaching, all of a sudden they started to go, "Wow, I'm feeling better. I'm connecting to my past.") all of that material came from that as I was developing more and more.

Virginia:

It was interesting to me that the answer that I would have said for this particular issue was not necessarily the answer I would have given for some other issue. This is just one part of them. In fact, coping with the war for example, would've been a different answer than coping with what we're dealing with right now. Would've been a different answer for me with other issues. I would have answered that question differently if it had been a different subject. I was quite interested because then I kept going back and I had connected with these people energetically, some of them anyway. And I felt connected to some of them all along anyway. I just found it really fascinating.

Tori Hartman:

Oh, that's great. When you look at the grandparents or your parents, was there one in particular that came forward to you the most?

Virginia:

Yes, it was my mother's mother, who I've felt very connected to my whole life, especially after she died. I mean, I was only 16 when she died. I was probably in my thirties or forties when I started to think about her in a more energetic way. But the word that came to mind for this particular situation, was 'endure'.

Tori Hartman:

And it's interesting. The words tonight are fascinating I have to tell you, because when we look at that Virginia, of course that's how they dealt with war in their world, right. Endure it. You endure it, and you survive it. And that's what you have to do. And it's just fascinating. And I think the card I pulled, let me talk about your card, talk about you. The Hermit Card.

Tori Hartman:

Now in the Chakra Wisdom Tarot, the Hermit Card is the third chakra and she, the hermit is a female, she's holding the yellow lantern up to get light into her path in the future. And she's completely surrounded by darkness, but she's actually wearing this incredibly beautiful orange gown. It's like an orangey-red. And the reason I'm looking at this card is important for you; it really is about the first three chakras. They're very important in terms of a cycle because those are all the earth chakras. They're grounded. So when we look at this and we say, "Okay, first chakra is your beliefs, family beliefs," what you brought into this life are the family beliefs first, right? Because those are your roots. Your second chakra really is the emotions that you created around those beliefs. And then of course the third is fight or flight.

Tori Hartman:

And what I love about this card, it is the third chakra card, but it's also that she's holding the lantern up, this yellow lantern. And she's looking ahead. So she definitely is in that "I want to go forward." This is not a card of going backward, even though she is surrounded by darkness, she still does not give up. And if you think about that grandmother, that word 'endure', right? To never give up. I mean, it just reminds me, I don't know where I'm getting this, but Scarlett O'Hara, "As God is my witness, I will never..." And the reason I say that is because the message that I'm getting from her for you at this time is, "keep looking because you must make that declaration. You must not only endure, but I want you to do better than me."

Virginia:

Yep. That's the one. I've had that. That's what I get from, from her.

Tori Hartman:

Yes. And she's very much saying that right now. And I'm going to give you this too, which is one of the things that we work with in the fun book, and I'll tell you, some of you can work on it if you want. But is that freeform journaling with them having that dialogue around, "What did that really mean to you and how was it during the war? Tell me more about that." And they will start to tell you, so the thing I want to say is that she is going to give you the information of how to endure, and endure sounds like, oh gosh, putting up with, but endure is actually stronger in many ways. Right? My dad used to always say, "Tuck and roll. Tuck and roll, baby."

Tori Hartman:

He was a paratrooper on D-day. They learned that, when they landed, they tucked and they rolled. And so he would just say, "It's time to tuck and roll." Why do you think the British had that brilliant "keep calm and carry on"? Of course, now in the past two years, we've made it mean a hundred different things, but they really were about enduring, because if we can get up tomorrow, we have a chance for the next day. And in some ways, you really understand the loss of these two years. And by the way, I don't think there's anybody on this call that doesn't get that, that we've lost two years. We've been confused, disoriented and disconnected. And so disconnected that the hate has been running everything, and what's interesting about that is that you see we cannot get back to anything until we recognize that we've lost our humanity.

Tori Hartman:

And only then can we start to shift things. Because it really doesn't matter what happens out there. What matters is what's happening within you. And by the way, I want to just validate something. You do have a very important message to give. You've kept it for a long time. You know what your message is. And yet, at the same time, it is something that... That's why you're getting the word 'endure'. Like this is important. Right?

Virginia:

Yes.

Tori Hartman:

When we look at all of your ancestors tonight, they're giving us messages. And I love that you got the hermit third chakra because that's fight or flight and the question for you is, "Okay, you've endured long enough. Now what do you want to do?" Are you going to be part of it or are you going to just go... I just keep picking up your dad's dad.

Tori Hartman:

And I'm just going to tell you really quickly that I feel like he is on the horizon and he has some stuff to tell you. And I'm not sure, I'm going to be honest, I'm not entirely sure what that is, but I feel like you could start looking at who he was and what he did. This is going to help you thrive.

Virginia:

Okay.

Tori Hartman:

Because this is actually funny, you guys. A lot of these guys, I know my grandfather, he was a bootlegger. He was a standup citizen in that way.

Jennifer:

That's starting to make sense now.

Tori Hartman:

Right? About me? Oh yeah. Because that's the thing, we know what we need to do to survive. There's always one relative that was kind of like a scallywag, right?

Virginia:

Yes.

Tori Hartman:

There's somewhere in the heritage because of what we wouldn't survive if we didn't have that.

Virginia:

Well, this particular grandfather was my father's stepfather, which was his father figure.

Tori Hartman:

Got it.

Virginia:

I don't know anything really about the biological father, and the word that I chose for him, interestingly enough, was 'practical'.

Tori Hartman:

Ahhh.

Virginia:

Yes.

Tori Hartman:

And you know, what's funny, think about this, there was a man who came in and took this boy as his own.

Virginia:

Yes. Three children.

Tori Hartman:

Right? So he stepped up. And you know what? That's because you have stepped up. This is the lesson from that. Endure, but also step up. Don't turn away responsibilities that you need to claim because they're going to lead you where you need to go. That's the message. Does it make sense?

Virginia:

It does. There something else though that I'm curious about - whether other people have this. I know what you're talking about when you say that we have been disconnected and we've lost something. But I can see that on a collective level, on a personal level. The word that I chose for myself was 'easy' because these two years have been... They didn't change much. I worked from my home - I don't need to have to go to an outside office. And I live alone. So adjusting was not hard. And then people made accommodations. I have friends, and we did oracle card readings over the phone and sent them through texts. And we had Zoom, every writer I know that was working from home, we all got on Zoom, you know?

Tori Hartman:

Yes.

Virginia:

It wasn't an endurance contest for me. Now, there were practicalities, but I wonder, there must be other people that had that same reaction where you're worried for other people sometimes in your own house.

Tori Hartman:

Well, exactly. But here's the thing I want to remind you, also. This was war time. So think about it. There are people who made a fortune in war.

Virginia:

Yes, well that's true.

Tori Hartman:

My dad was in France and World War II. He was in France and he was playing cards with a couple of guys and somebody blew open the back of a French truck. It was war. It was the armed car. And some of his buddies went over and grabbed all the money. My dad says, "Ah, that's not going to be worth anything after... Well, I don't want it." Point is some of them came home with fortunes.

Virginia:

Yes. You're absolutely right.

Tori Hartman:

There's always going to be someone who does well during a war. That's always going to happen. And I'm glad of this. Remember, we've reached the tipping point where we do have an enemy in the world. And guess what? The enemy is not in America.

Virginia:

Right.

Jennifer:

Right.

Tori Hartman:

We have a Hitler, and he's called Xi Jinping. We do have him, but no one wants to say it.

Virginia:

Oh, I see. I wasn't thinking of that kind of enemy. I was thinking about the virus.

Tori Hartman:

Well, the virus. Yes. And there is a practical, physical enemy as well in that sense. Right?

Virginia:

Yes.

Tori Hartman:

Because we can look at the cruelty. The reason I say this is because that's the undercurrent underneath COVID as well. So we've got layers.

Virginia:

We expose a lot with it.

Tori Hartman:

That's it. -

Virginia:

It's presence exposed a lot.

Tori Hartman:

Thank you.

Jennifer:

Yes, it exposed all of it.

Virginia:

Right here.

Jennifer:

I had the same experience. Mine was expansion. COVID was expansion for me. I learned so much about myself in the world, and I learned compassion. We got to see very clearly what Tori is talking about.

Tori Hartman:

Exactly. The most important part about all this, is that I can say, "Yes, we may have expanded, but remember, during war time there's always a few people that become well known, or do really well." But you know, when we look at somebody ... historically, FDR and Hitler died within six weeks of each other after the war. So people like that they had to go. They went. The reason I'm saying that is during war time, we're on high alert and we're afraid and that's in our DNA. What has happened is it's almost like it turns on again and we get these feelings and we don't know how to use them. They're coming from family even though I had great revelations too, by the way.

Jennifer:

Yes. Well, that's cool. I love this idea, Tori, of it's turned on an ancestral fear. Yes, of course it would. It's brilliant.

Tori Hartman:

And that's exactly what we're talking about - is how to look at it and accept that we actually have all of these tools in us right now to do more than just survive.

Jennifer:

We can use it and leverage it and jump up from it. Oh, awesome. Virginia, I want to thank you so much for bringing forward this amazing information and conversation. Thank you. This has been amazing. Thank you, thank you.

Jennifer:

All right. Well that is a wrap on today. And Tori's offer looks like it's sold out. So those lucky 12 people got in. And put yourself on the list in case Tori opens it up for more people.

Jennifer:

Excellent. I agree. This is really super-

Tori Hartman:

I want to say welcome to everybody who just joined MasterWorks Healing. It is the best money, and I say this every year, I have to say it now, I'm getting goose bumps. It gives every single person that comes in, myself and I can think of Dee Wallace, I can think of different people. It helps us raise our game because all of you want to play a better and bigger game. Somebody said to me, "How do I get a bigger life?" And I said, "Be bigger. Ask for bigger. Be bigger." And I think that's what I'm saying - when this ends, by the way, it will end, you are not going to be the same person. So be ready. Be ready.

Jennifer:

Amen to that. Thank you, Tori, for that beautiful testimonial to this very special community. And the testimonial you are giving is to the community and to the amazing contributors. It's the combination of these beautiful souls that have chosen to gather together at this time that make this community what it is. Every single week it's all of you that brings the shows together. If we didn't have you, we'd have nothing. We'd just be twiddling our thumbs. You bring your passion, and your hurts, and your pains, and your suffering, and your wins to us every week. We do share wins.

Jennifer:

Thank you for this amazing community for showing up here. I know it was a long day and I appreciate you. You've been troopers throughout this whole thing, but you're also getting so much great information. I sure am. So join us tomorrow. We've got the amazing Brian Seth Hurst who's on first thing tomorrow morning. He is one of the most remarkable psychics. He will likely dive into your session work before you even ask a question. That's how he works. He's pretty amazing.

Jennifer:

And then is Dee Wallace, she is also a famous actress. You may remember her. She played the mom in the movie, E.T. And I'm going to share the soul songs of 2022. And I'm also going to do some psychic work, and I'm going to do an STT session to prepare you for the year. So we're going to finish up predictions week with some pretty fun psychic healing and sound and vibration. I hope you join me.

Tori Hartman:

Oh, I'm so excited.

Jennifer:

Yeah, it's going to a good day.

Tori Hartman:

Well, thank you so much and thank you everyone. I'm going to leave you be. And please, please, please, you even are on the fence, just join. There's nothing to lose. It's the most reasonable thing you'll find all year and it's such a consistent thing. So I just... And by the way I have offers. I'm more interested in you doing that. I'm like, "Go Jennifer McLean!" Yeah. Because I think that's how you really learn. When you get exposed to so many people, because it is... And you're so generous. You really are with the community. And there's just not a better place to be. I know I've repeated myself. Love you lot. Feel better.

Jennifer:

I love you lot too, honey. Thank you, Tori, for your brilliance.

Tori Hartman:

Bye, for now.

Jennifer:

Thank you, honey. Bye-bye.

Tori Hartman:

Bye.

Jennifer:

And thanks all of you. Have a great evening. Please do join if you can. Remember we are raising the prices February 1st. So, it's a really good time to join. You can lock in that 10-year-old rate. Oh my goodness. I love you guys. I will see you all tomorrow, fresh and early at 10:00 AM, pacific time. 10, 11, 12, 1:00 PM, New York time. Okey-dokey? For Brian Seth Hurst. Bye-bye now. Goodnight everyone. Bye-bye.
